

JULIAN ELTINGE, who has dropped out of minstrelsy into vaudeville, will give his really remarkable female impersonations at the Fulton next week, only they will all be different from those seen here before. In addition to the sensational dance, "The Goddess of Incense," Mr. Eltinge will be seen as the Nell Brinkley girl, the bathing girl and the hoyden. Then there will be Maude Odell, in six new poses; Henry Lee, in his "speaking likenesses of great men"; the Four Stagpoles, in the acrobatic absurdity, "The Crazy Caddie"; La Maza Brothers, also acrobats, and Halliday and Curley, in the travesty, "The Battle of Too Soon."
