

LESBIAN HAS BABY

BY 'STUD'

By VICTOR CHAPPLE

TWO young lesbian lovers are expecting a baby next month—after an astonishing manhunt to find a father.

Sharon “Ossie” Osborne and Sandra Irvine decided they needed a child to complete their “perfect” relationship as man and wife.

So blonde Sandra, 23, went out night after night to find a man to father the baby Sharon could not give her.

She slept with two men without success. Then she tried a third “stud”—and became pregnant.

Now the two women are looking forward to raising the baby in their own lovenest... a £12-a-week flat provided by the council at Plymouth when it learned of Sandra's pregnancy.

Sharon, also 23, said last night: “I'm ecstatic. Naturally, I shall expect him to call me Dad.”

But Sandra's mother yesterday condemned the couple's relationship as “frankly disgusting.”

She looks after a daughter that ex-stripper Sandra had two years ago.

And Mr Tom Jones, chairman of Plymouth's housing committee—which has a long housing waiting list—promised an inquiry into how the two women got a council flat.

Sandra . . . found man to father her baby
