Historical Note

Established in 1984, a year in which an estimated 8,000 gay and bisexual men became infected with HIV in San Francisco, the STOP AIDS Project works to prevent HIV transmission among all gay and bisexual men through multicultural, community-based organizing. All programs are based on established public health, community organizing and volunteer management principles, are free to participants, and are built using input from members of the populations they serve.

In 1984, founders Sam Puckett and Larry Bye ran focus groups for the San Francisco Aids Foundation and realized how valuable the small group format was for informal, candid discussions about safe sex. STOP AIDS Project's non-profit designation was secured and 1985, and the Project began in earnest as an "experiment in communication." Puckett and Bye realized that information alone was not enough to bring about the behavior change necessary to prevent infection and that "personal contact, through meetings and face-to-face discussions would aid individuals in making more informed choices" (STOP AIDS Project informational sheet). Below is a timeline which outlines major dates in the history of the STOP AIDS Project.

1985-present: Living Room Meetings/Workshops (later called M4M meetings) present basic HIV/AIDS information, discussion on risk reduction techniques and factors contributing to risky behaviors in small, informal group settings. They are held in homes of volunteer hosts and facilitated by volunteer facilitators.

1985-present: Street outreach used as a prevention tool to disseminate information, survey community norms of sexual behavior and promote workshop attendance. During one-on-one conversations with men on the streets/clubs/bars, volunteers conduct behavioral surveys and discuss strategies for keeping them and their partners safe. Outreach teams work in neighborhoods such as the Castro, Polk and South of Market (SoMa).

1985-1987: STOP AIDS Project reaches over 30,000 men, with 7,000 people participating in 3 hour long meetings.

1987: In response to data showing that HIV transmission rates in San Francisco dropped to less than 1%, the STOP AIDS Project shuts its doors.

1987-1990: The STOP AIDS Resource Center helps sixteen other communities across the country establish their own HIV prevention programs.

1990 May: STOP AIDS Project re-opens its doors due to rising HIV transmission rates in San Francisco.

1992: A grant is awarded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention which allows STOP AIDS Project to double its staff and embark on new programs to outreach bisexual men, men of color and men under 26 years old.

1994: QAction, a program targeting 25-under gay/bi/trans men is launched. QAction works to reduce HIV transmission rates and build a healthy future for young gay men of all colors through multimedia projects such as FLIQ video workshops and workshops.

1996: QAction introduces 2 new programs - Café Chats (a space for young men to informally meet and chat about issues relevant to their lives) and FLIQ (video screening and discussion - video pieces that combine interviews by QAction volunteers with local men and clips of other videos relevant to the topic of the FLIQ).

1996: Community forms - large events on single topics related to HIV prevention - are started.

1997: Condoms Now! Is created and launched to coincide with the Folsom Street Fair. The Condoms Now! program distributes free condoms at more than 100 businesses in the Castro, Haight, Mission, Polk, SoMa and Tenderloin neighborhoods.

1998: Our Love, a program by and for African American gay and bisexual men, is launched.

1998: "Working Boys" photo project documents the lives of hustlers on Polk Street.

1999: Living room meetings become M4M meetings.

1999-2000: Two programs designed specifically for HIV Positive men are introduced - Positive Force, which hosts a series of community forums and social events for HIV positive men and PLUS Seminars (Positive Living for Us) which provides newly diagnosed individuals with the latest info on treatment and support

2000: Internet outreach program starts - staff and volunteers survey and chat with men using online forums and chat rooms designed to meet sex partners.

2000: In Our Prime and Trannyfags workshops are introduced.

2002: The CDC conducts an audit of STOP AIDS Project, targeting the Project for misuse of federal funds and obscene content. They determine that the STOP AIDS Project is in compliance w Federal law and local guidelines and founded on evidence-based, sound prevention science.

2002: "HIV Is No Picnic" media campaign unveiled.

2003: STOP AIDS Project is one of 3 agencies nationwide to be awarded Grade A on the Lambda Legal World AIDS Day Report Card.

2005: In July the STOP AIDS Project unveils a new approach to HIV prevention through sexual networks (or groups of people connected to one another through sex). 6 high-risk networks are to be targeted: gay bars /clubs; commercial/public sex environments; leather/BDSM communities; African Americans; gyms; and internet hookup sites.

2011: On November 1st, 2011, STOP AIDS Project joins the family of HIV prevention and care programs at the San Francisco AIDS Foundation.

Subseries 2. Surveys 1990-2006Scope and Contents

This subseries consists of surveys conducted by STOP AIDS Project staff and volunteers. The STOP AIDS Project routinely conducts surveys of gay, bisexual and transgender men on the streets of predominantly gay neighborhoods such as the Castro, and at other events and venues in San Francisco such as parades, sex clubs, sex shops, bars and clubs. They are also regularly used at meetings, workshops, trainings and community forums.

The STOP AIDS Project uses a behavioral risk assessment (BRA) with San Francisco Department of Public Health-approved questions that are formatted for the state's ELI (evaluating local interventions) system. Participants in individual risk reduction counseling (IRRC), single session groups (SSG), multiple session workshops (MSW), single session workshops (SSG) and venue based group outreach (VBGO) fill out the assessment prior to their participation in the intervention. For venue-based individual outreach (VBIO) (such as on-the-street interventions), the participant orally answers the questions and the outreach worker records the answers.

These behavioral surveys (including Behavioral Risk Assessments (BRAs), risk surveys, sex surveys and others) are used as an instrument to gauge activity and risk for contracting or transmitting sexually transmitted diseases, including HIV. Quantitative data, such as demographic information, is routinely transmitted to the San Francisco Department of Public Health. Qualitative information is often used to shape and inform the Project's prevention programs.

To protect the privacy of participants and volunteers, records containing personally identifiable information, including sign-in sheets and survey summary sheets, were removed and are restricted to researchers for 80 years from the date of creation (see Series 11. Restricted Material, Subseries 13. Surveys).

This subseries is arranged chronologically. Undated materials follow in alphabetical order.

Series 8. Photographic Material circa 1980s-2000s

Processing Information note

Photos with dates and descriptive information (events, programs etc.) are listed at the beginning of the series in chronological order. Photos with descriptive information but without dates follow in alphabetical order. Many of the photos were originally housed in envelopes from the photo processor that developed the roll of film. Each of these discrete groupings of photos/negatives have been rehoused into folders and labeled (for example "Photos" or "Photos/Negatives") as typically the envelopes did not contain any descriptive information. Loose photos follow the unidentified rolls of photos/negatives.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of photos, negatives, contact sheets and slides documenting people and events related to the STOP AIDS project.

Series 10. Born-Digital Material

Scope and Contents

The material contained in this series consists of documents, graphics, spreadsheets, databases, and other material created and/or stored on computers by the STOP AIDS Project. The digital files are forensically captured images of those stored on floppy disks, CD-ROMs, zip disks, and other media in the STOP AIDS Project collection.

100,482 files were forensically captured from the obsolete computer media. After filtering for duplicates, the number of actual files is 29,423. Of this number, 1,816 files were flagged as containing privileged/restricted information such as staff/volunteer/participant information, social security numbers and credit card numbers.

27,607 files totaling 5,925 MB are available for research. There are 582 database files, 14,459 document files, 2,869 graphics files, 79 presentations, and 1,557 spreadsheets.

Processing Information note

Disk images of the computer media were created using FTK Imager and stored in a standalone personal computer. After detecting and cleaning any computer viruses using Sophos Anti-Virus software, the cleaned files were transferred to a secured server with regular backup schedule. All files will be ingested into the Stanford Digital Repository (SDR; a dark digital archive) for long term preservation.

The materials have been screened for private/confidential information, but have not been arranged beyond file type.

Access to Collection

This material can be made available for use in the reading room. Please contact the Digital Archivist to schedule an appointment.
