
JEWESSES ON A FROLIC. Last Sunday was the "Ram's Head Festival" of the Jews, and many of the New York Israelites appeared in the streets masked. Two young Jewesses, daughters of wealthy and well known citizens, determined to have a frolic, and attiring themselves in male apparel, lounged up Eighth Avenue, when their disguise was detected by a policeman, who undertook to arrest them, when they resisted gallantly, assisted by some Jews who rushed to their rescue, and were not conquered till the policeman's comrades came to his help. They were taken to the station house and kept till the next morning, when their indignant fathers released them from "durance vile." During their scuffle with the policemen, the fair daughters of Israel were relieved of their gold bracelets and several articles of rich jewelry.
